

Dignity At Work Policy

1. POLICY

(i) Purpose

The Brazen Productions Dignity at Work Policy sets out our commitment to creating and sustaining a fair, equitable, inclusive, supportive working culture. Everybody at Brazen is entitled to work in a dignified, professional environment in which they are given agency and unequivocal respect. Brazen takes a zero-tolerance approach to all forms of bullying, harassment and discrimination. Equally, Brazen promotes open and honest dialogue, positive and constructive feedback and critical discourse. We recognise the whole person and we acknowledge that people and terminology are not static. The Dignity at Work Policy is co-authored with Brazen's staff and freelancers and is reviewed annually.

(ii) To Whom it Applies

The Dignity at Work Policy applies to everyone working at or with Brazen, inclusive of all employees, freelancers, volunteers, suppliers, clients and visitors. Anyone who works at or with Brazen can invoke this policy to protect their rights and wellbeing and to seek an appropriate remedy for any infractions.

(iii) What to do if you Disagree with this Policy or Have Ideas for its Improvement

If you disagree with this Policy, believe we are failing to meet the standards set herein or have suggestions for improving this policy, we want to hear from you. Please request a meeting with the CEO or a Company Director. All contributions to the Policy will be considered and discussed openly.

(iv) Training

In order to create a dignified, respectful working culture, Brazen is committed to providing training for all staff, freelancers and volunteers including anti-bullying and harassment training, unconscious bias training, active bystander training and any other such training requested by staff or freelancers to benefit and improve our shared working culture.

2. DEFINITIONS

- Bullying is unwanted intimidating or offensive behaviour that violates your dignity and/or creates a hostile, humiliating or degrading working environment.
- Harassment is bullying that is connected with one of the 9 protected characteristics listed in the Equality Act 2010: age, sex, disability, gender reassignment, marriage and civil partnership, pregnancy and maternity, race, religion or belief, sexual orientation. Harassment is against the law.
- At work means any place or occasion where you are acting in a professional capacity associated with Brazen

3. RAISING A COMPLAINT

Should you experience any type of mistreatment that breaches the commitments set out in this Policy, you can raise either/both an informal or/and a formal complaint.

- Informal complaints may be raised with one of the Company Directors. Please request a private meeting. The substance of informal complaints remains confidential unless otherwise agreed (for example, if mediation were to be requested and provided). In the event the complaint involves the CEO, the complaint should be raised with a Company Director.
- Should you wish to raise a formal complaint, please request a meeting with the CEO in the first instance to set out an agreeable process. When a formal complaint is raised and an individual is accused of bullying, harassment or discrimination, the complaint will be investigated and the individual will be given an opportunity to hear and respond to the allegations made against them. The CEO will determine what reparations or consequences for poor behaviour are appropriate in the circumstances. In the event the complaint involves one of the Company Directors, the complaint should be raised with the other Company Director.
- Under no circumstances will you be penalised or reprimanded for raising a complaint provided you do so in good faith.

4. CONFIDENTIALITY & NDAs

Brazen respects and values privacy and confidentiality of all personal information. No details of any complaint or procedure will be published. Under no circumstances will Brazen offer, require or uphold a non-disclosure agreement.
